Thank you Dianne Reidy

Several years ago I heard a debate on the radio and the question proposed was: "does life begin at conception". The two debaters were a liberal Protestant minister and a conservative Catholic priest. The liberal Protestant minister stated that abortion must remain legal because we cannot determine when life begins. The Catholic priest countered by asking the minister: "if life does not begin at conception, why do people use contraceptives?" The liberal minister hemmed and hawed but could not answer the priest's question. Finally, the debate moderator, waiting for an answer, gave up out of exasperation, turned to the priest and said "how dare you embarrass a man of the cloth?" Evidently, it is politically incorrect to embarrass a liberal by asking him a question he cannot answer!

It's too bad that priest was not on hand when the United States Supreme Court legalized abortion in 1973 with their infamous Roe v Wade decision. At that time the justices stated they did not know when life begins. Since then more than 55 million innocent babies have been aborted because of the ignorance of the Supreme Court; and since 1973 all attempts to override the Court's tragic ruling have been unsuccessful. That's why I believe the Holy Spirit directed Mrs. Dianne Reidy to seize the microphone at the podium during last week's congressional vote on Obamacare and the debt limit. She created a lot of buzz by declaring that "God is not mocked". Under Obama care, contraception, sterilization and abortifacient drugs are taxpayer-funded as if they were health care. This is an affront to Almighty God. America must overturn this injustice.

I have come to agree with Mrs. Reidy's implied suggestion that the only way we can educate the Supreme Court as to the scientific fact that life begins at conception is by adding an amendment to the United States Constitution or by calling a Constitutional Convention. It's obvious that the 10 Commandments hold little sway with our current government nor does the inalienable right to life which the Bill of Rights states is granted by Almighty God. It's a poor reflection on our education system that we have to spell out in detail the facts of life for our elected leaders.

Thank you Dianne Reidy for your courage and faith! You are an inspiration for us Christians who must increasingly be willing to stand up and publicly acknowledge the gospel of Jesus Christ in these end times!
