

Fuzzy Puppy Tale or Bible Prophecy?

This will be just a very short video summarizing the Super Bowl and some of its commercials. And a couple of my subscribers had some really good ideas, and I thought I would talk about them. First of all, on this evil, iPad image, which is of a false flag event: just because it didn't happen at the Super Bowl, does not mean it is not about to happen, maybe at the Winter Olympics?

And someone suggested when you turn this upside down, you have the image of a volcano, and is this a bomb being dropped into the volcano?

Well, that's very perceptive. I hope you're wrong but that could be one of the events, and until iPad explains what that evil image is, I am going to claim that it does show a false flag event.

Next I want to talk about that 'Puppy Love' commercial which has gotten a lot of comments and a lot of dislikes. Even my sister is very upset with me because, just like most of you, she was raised in the Walt Disney generation and all animals are warm and fuzzy as far as you are concerned. I said the fuzzy puppy in that commercial symbolized the Antichrist. However, Jim O'Connor sent me a message and he noted that the puppy dog comes up out of the earth and that would change the symbolism. The puppy dog, in that case, would be the False Prophet. You are so right Jim. This is an image of the Beast coming up out of the earth.

So, let's take a walk through this puppy dog commercial again, and I will let you decide; does the puppy symbolize the Antichrist or the False Prophet?

'Warm Springs' would still symbolize the Lake of Fire because, according to a Bible prophecy, both the False Prophet and the Antichrist will be cast alive into the Lake of Fire.

Next, according to the Book of Revelation, the False Prophet has two horns and the Antichrist has ten horns. Can we tell from this video, does this puppy symbolize the False Prophet with two horns?

Those two floppy ears on this puppy dog sure look like horns to me. Not only that, but they flop up and make horns on three different occasions: one, two, three.

Also, one of my subscribers suggested that the symbolism does not quite hold between the horse and the puppy dog because the Antichrist would be much more important than the puppy dog, and wouldn't the horse symbolize the Antichrist, and the puppy the False Prophet? I agree, the Antichrist would be a bigger beast than the False Prophet.

One of the other major signs of the False Prophet in the Book of Revelation is that he works signs and wonders. Now, you who think this is just a warm and fuzzy story, how can you explain a horse chasing after a car just because there's a puppy in it? Have you ever seen anything like that happen? But scripture does say that the False Prophet works great signs.

I claim that my End Times Biblical interpretation of this Budweiser commercial is just as valid as your fuzzy-wuzzy puppy love interpretation.

When was the last time you ever saw four horses stop a vehicle on the highway? But, we do know, that the Four Horses of the Apocalypse will impede the progress of mankind in these latter days. Certainly, four horses stopping a car has got to be some kind of a miracle.

Next, we see this puppy dog leading five horses; is that a natural image? Or is that a supernatural image? My interpretation is just as valid as your Walt Disney interpretation. And that puppy dog could very well indicate the False Prophet because one of his roles in the End Times is not only to bring in the Four Horses of the Apocalypse but particularly, he is to announce the Antichrist. And 'the False Prophet seduces them that dwell on earth by reason of the great signs which he performs.'

So, once again, I want to thank all of you, my subscribers, for contributing a great deal.
